A Fascinating New Course for Fall, 2015!

Readings in the Talmud

RLST 415
T/TH 12:30 – 1:50

Taught by: Prof. Dov Weiss
Assistant Professor, Department of Religion

Course Description: The Talmud is one of the most important works of Jewish literature. For the last millennium, Talmud study has been a central part of Jewish religious and cultural practice. This course will explain the Talmud’s import and durability within Jewish culture while introducing students to the rigors of legal analysis that lie at the heart of most talmudic passages. The course is ideal for those interested in religion, law, logic games and questions of textual interpretation. The course will study the Talmud entirely in English translation.
